

IN THE YOUNG AND RISING GENERATION, the vegetative powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the hunched back and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show the influence of some depressing influence in checking the development of the body.

If the patient be a female, the restraint of fashionable dress, and the ball-room, with the body half clothed, the mind eagerly intent on pleasure. When excitation is finished, another in prospective pleasure, the mind morbidly sensitive and absolutely forbids the exercise indispensable to organic strength. Exposure to night air, and body sweating with excessive dancing, produce their legitimate effect, and the unfortunate female, regardless of the plain dictates of common sense, becomes an unwilling subject to medical treatment.

As the increase of appetite has grown by what it fed on, the energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged.

In reviewing the causes of these distressing complaints, it is most sadly to contemplate the attendant evil consequent upon them. It is a sad simple justice to the subject to enunciate a law of the many unfortunate cases which so largely affect the life, health and happiness of all classes of society, and which, consequently, affect, more or less directly, the welfare of the entire human family, and at the same time placing in their hands a remedy for the removal of the consequences.

HELMHOLD'S
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,
FOR WEARINESS.

ARISING FROM EXHAUSTION OR INDISPOSITION, RESULTING IN PROSTRATION OF THE SYSTEM, AND AT EVERY PERIOD OF LIFE.

Attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exercise, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Headache, Stomach Weakness, Nervous Trembling, Horrid Dreams, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Excessive Appetite, with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Face, Dryness of the Skin, Pains in the Limbs, and Eruptions on the Face. Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility of the Nervous System, with Horrid Dreams. Nothing is more desirable to such Patients than Solidity, and nothing they more dread for Fear of Themselves, no Repose of Mind, no Exultation, no Speculation, and a hurried Transition from one question to another.

These symptoms, followed to one which this Medicine invariably removes—namely Loss of Power, Fatigue, and Dyspeptic Eruptions in one of which the patient may expire.

During the Superintendent of Dr. Wilson, at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this medicine occurred to two patients, reason had for a few feet them, and both died of epilepsy.

Who can say that these cases are not frequently followed by those of the disease, INSANITY AND CONSUMPTION? The records of the Insane Asylum and the melancholy deaths by Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Insane Asylums the most melancholy exhibition exists. The countenance is sallow and sallow and quite different from the healthy and rosy cheek. It should be a source of the voice, and it is rarely articulate.

With medical measures was treated Low spirits caused his girl beguiled.

While we regret the existence of these diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an available gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences—

HELMHOLD'S
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,
FOR WEARINESS.

It is an anchor of hope to the surgeon and patient, and this is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

HELMHOLD'S
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,
FOR WEARINESS.

It is an anchor of hope to the surgeon and patient, and this is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

HELMHOLD'S
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,
FOR WEARINESS.

It is an anchor of hope to the surgeon and patient, and this is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

HELMHOLD'S
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,
FOR WEARINESS.

It is an anchor of hope to the surgeon and patient, and this is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

HELMHOLD'S
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,
FOR WEARINESS.

It is an anchor of hope to the surgeon and patient, and this is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

HELMHOLD'S
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,
FOR WEARINESS.

It is an anchor of hope to the surgeon and patient, and this is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

HELMHOLD'S
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,
FOR WEARINESS.

It is an anchor of hope to the surgeon and patient, and this is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

HELMHOLD'S
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,
FOR WEARINESS.

It is an anchor of hope to the surgeon and patient, and this is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

HELMHOLD'S
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,
FOR WEARINESS.

It is an anchor of hope to the surgeon and patient, and this is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

HELMHOLD'S
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,
FOR WEARINESS.

It is an anchor of hope to the surgeon and patient, and this is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

HELMHOLD'S
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,
FOR WEARINESS.

It is an anchor of hope to the surgeon and patient, and this is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

HELMHOLD'S
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,
FOR WEARINESS.

It is an anchor of hope to the surgeon and patient, and this is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

FROM WASHINGTON.

OUR SPECIAL DISPATCHES.

THE TAX ON BROKERS' SALES.

Prize Fight on the Banks of the Potomac.

IMPORTANT INDIAN TREATIES NEGOTIATED.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE CAZAR OF RUSSIA.

Spicy Debate on the Post-Office Appropriation Bill.

Debate in the House on the Reconstruction Plan.

The Revenue Bill Considered in the Evening Session.

Various Amendments Proposed and Rejected.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, May 8, 1866.

REBATES ON RECONSTRUCTION.

The discussion in the House today on the reconstruction programme was exceedingly spirited, and indicates that the only section of the constitutional amendment that will create any division in the Republican party is the third section; and the main objection against it is the early enfranchisement of the Rebels. The discussion will probably run through the week, when the vote being reached, a motion will be made to recommit to the Committee with instructions to strike out the date in the third section. What its fate will be it is yet too early to determine. The general programme will gain by a full and free discussion.

The 30-minute rule works admirably. Over 40 names are on the list for speeches, and nearly all want their entire half-hour.

THE POST-OFFICE BILL.

The discussion in the Senate today over the amendment to the Post-Office Bill intended to restrict the power of removal in the President was quite animated. No vote was taken, and the question again goes over to to-morrow.

If this amendment is lost it is very doubtful if any separate bill will pass, as nearly all of those who vote against the amendment would not vote for such a bill in any shape. Its loss is very much regretted by almost all the honest, earnest, true, courageous Senators who are not afraid to take responsibility when necessary.

INDIAN AFFAIRS.

The Commissioner of Indian Affairs is making arrangements to hold a council with the Indians of the Plains at Fort Laramie, for a treaty with them. A telegram received yesterday from E. B. Taylor, Superintendent at Omaha, states that 30,000 Indians will attend, and desires to know if subsistence can be furnished them.

THE TELEGRAPH SYSTEM.

The Senate Special Committee appointed to examine into the present telegraph system have called upon the Postmaster-General for a report in regard to the expediency of connecting it with the postal system. The Postmaster-General is now engaged upon his report, and will have it ready to submit to the Committee in a few days.

Until it is received no action will be taken by the Com-receipt of three-dollar packages of mutilated national currency for redemption, and in many instances several packages containing this amount from the same source are received. As the misapprehension, to a considerable extent, exists that fractional currency will only be redeemed when forwarded in three-dollar packages, the announcement that such is not the case, and that sums of any amount over three dollars will be redeemed, will doubtless save both the forwarders and the Division much time and unnecessary trouble.

CONSCIENCE MONEY.
Gen. Spinner today received from an anonymous source a $200 as a contribution to the "conscience fund" of the Treasury Department.

To the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, May 8, 1866.

AMERICAN ABROAD.

The number of Americans visiting Europe is shown by the amount of passports issued by the Department of State to be largely increasing. More have been issued in 1866 than in any previous year, sometimes as many as in a single day. It is a sign of the times to grant any such letters. Obvious public reasons demand this rule.
It may also be mentioned here that bearers of dispatches whose appointment is also duly solicited are not appointed, except in cases where the mails are obstructed or delayed. At all other times dispatches go by mail.

INDIAN TREATIES.

Col. W. Winkup arrived in this city today from the West, where he has succeeded in effecting a treaty with the Cheyenne Indians of the Plains, through which security is granted to both the settlers and the emigrants to and from the West. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights, and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various
Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by
his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the
special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the
troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and
energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian
tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full
indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most
beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and
the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights,
and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various
Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by
his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the
special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the
troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and
energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian
tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full
indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most
beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and
the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights,
and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various
Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by
his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the
special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the
troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and
energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian
tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full
indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most
beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and
the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights,
and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various
Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by
his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the
special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the
troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and
energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian
tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full
indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and
the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights,
and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various
Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by
his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the
special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the
troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and
energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian
tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full
indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and
the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights,
and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various
Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by
his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the
special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the
troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and
energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian
tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full
indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and
the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights,
and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various
Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by
his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the
special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the
troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and
energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian
tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full
indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and
the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights,
and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various
Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by
his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the
special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the
troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and
energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian
tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full
indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and
the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights,
and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various
Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by
his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the
special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the
troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and
energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian
tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full
indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most
beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and
the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights,
and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various
Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by
his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the
special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the
troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and
energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian
tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full
indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most
beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and
the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights,
and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various
Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by
his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the
special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the
troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and
energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian
tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full
indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most
beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and
the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights,
and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various
Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by
his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the
special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the
troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and
energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian
tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full
indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most
beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and
the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights,
and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various
Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by
his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the
special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the
troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and
energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian
tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full
indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most
beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and
the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights,
and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various
Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by
his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the
special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the
troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and
energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian
tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full
indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most
beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and
the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights,
and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various
Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by
his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the
special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the
troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and
energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian
tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full
indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most
beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and
the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights,
and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various
Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by
his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the
special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the
troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and
energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian
tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full
indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most
beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and
the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights,
and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various
Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by
his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the
special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the
troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and
energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian
tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full
indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most
beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and
the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights,
and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various
Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by
his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the
special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the
troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and
energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian
tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full
indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most
beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and
the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights,
and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various
Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by
his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the
special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the
troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and
energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian
tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full
indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most
beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and
the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights,
and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various
Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by
his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the
special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the
troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and
energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian
tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full
indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most
beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and
the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights,
and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various
Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by
his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the
special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the
troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and
energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian
tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full
indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most
beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and
the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights,
and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various
Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by
his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the
special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the
troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and
energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian
tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full
indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most
beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and
the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights,
and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various
Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by
his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the
special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the
troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and
energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian
tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full
indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most
beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and
the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights,
and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various
Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by
his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the
special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the
troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and
energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian
tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full
indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most
beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and
the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights,
and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various
Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by
his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the
special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the
troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and
energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian
tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full
indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most
beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and
the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights,
and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various
Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by
his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the
special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the
troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and
energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian
tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full
indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most
beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and
the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights,
and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various
Indian tribes, and they assumed a warlike attitude. Col.
Winkup, formerly of the 1st Colorado Cavalry, war, by
his urgent request of both the white and the Indian, retained in the service of the War Department for the
special purpose of effecting a peaceful solution of the
troubles on the Plains, and in this line of duty directed to the Department at Washington, Dec. 18, 1865, and
energetically pushed forward toward the far West.
March 1, 1866, he convened the scattered Indian
tribes on Bluff Creek, south of the Arkansas River, 80 miles from Fort Laramie, and effected their full
indorsement of a treaty promising to secure the most
beneficial results under its terms. The settlers and
the emigrants will be amply protected in all their rights,
and no apprehension need be felt of further Indian outrages. The Cheyenne massacre increased the various Indian tribes, and they assumed a war